Your Reebok Kinetic supports a wide range of workout types, and you can create custom activity profiles through the Reebok Connect app.

Custom profiles let you organize your training options around the activities you want to track.

To create a custom activity profile:

1. Open the Reebok Connect app on your phone.
2. Navigate to the activity or training customization options.
3. Look for the option to create or configure a custom activity profile.
4. Follow the on-screen instructions to set up your profile.

Once configured, the available profile and activity options can be accessed through the watch's Training feature.

The options available may depend on your app version and watch software.
